

NORTHERN REFORESTATION PLAN PROMISED BY HEPBURN

Scheme Would Meet Increasing U.S. Competition, Premier Says at Simcoe

"FOLLY IN SOUTH"

Special to The Star Simcoe, June 10.—Extensive northern reforestation, which will enable Ontario in future years to harvest millions of dollars worth of timber annually, was promised last night by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, speaking before 500 county councillors at a banquet which climaxed the Norfolk county reforestation field day...

Sees No Flood Relief

Problem of soil conservation, particularly in the valleys of Ontario's principal rivers, was important, the premier said, referring to spring-time flood ravages and summer drought conditions in these areas.

"Faced with fierce competition, we have underdrained our soil and this has resulted in unprecedented floods in the spring, with dried up streams in the summer," he declared.

The premier said he would meet a committee from the Grand River conservation scheme to discuss possible methods of flood control on that river. "There appears to be no relief in the future," said the premier, adding that some methods of control must soon be devised.

He suggested building of dams and water conservation areas along the Grand watershed.

Doubles Capacity of Soil Proper application of newly devised scientific agricultural methods, as worked out by the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, was advised by the farmer-premier. "In many sections of Ontario, and even on my own farm in Elgin, we have been able to double the capacity of the soil," he declared.

Turning to reforestation, Mr. Hepburn advocated a close "follow-up system" by forestry officials and experts to supervise and check results of the huge expenditure incurred yearly by the province in applying trees. Heavy reforestation of productive areas in southern Ontario, he declared, would only be an "act of folly," since the United States markets offered more monetary return from other crops.

He did, however, urge sympathetic reforestation of unproductive areas, however small.

U.S. Spending More for Mills "Our government has been criticized for attempting to open up the north country's pulp limits," he said. "But the attitude of the former government in conserving them in order to force the United States to pay higher prices has only driven the newspaper manufacturers of that country to build large mills in the south and import pulpwood from the Scandinavian countries. They do not want to do this, but in less than a year United States paper manufacturers have spent $60,000,000 in the south, a rise of from 2 per cent to nearly 28 per cent over last year, with a possible increase this year."

The government's northern development scheme, he reported, had opened hitherto inaccessible areas and "all through Northern Ontario we find the wheels of industry turning." Employment, as increased by thousands, the premier pointed out, and in one plant alone 2,200 men will soon find employment.

Colin Brooke, editor of the London Sunday Despatch, a guest of Mr. Hepburn, spoke briefly, referring to the premier as "a great imperial figure" in his stand against "labor dictatorship." Such a figure was needed today as a "foe" against the anarchy which we in Britain and here have to face, in our industrial life.

STATEMENT ON GOLD ASKED OF COMMONS

British Economist Sees Atmosphere of Nervousness, Secrecy

London, June 10.—Publication of the facts about Great Britain's gold reserves was urged to-day in a letter to the Times by J. M. Keynes, one of Britain's foremost economists and former adviser to the government. Keynes said an "atmosphere of nervousness and secrecy" had been generated around the gold problem and urged that it be dispensed by a statement of exactly the amount of gold held by the British government. He invited Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, to make this statement.

If it were proved that the British government had a gold surplus, the dominions could be asked to reconsider their policy of handing their gold reserves over to Great Britain in exchange for sterling balances, Keynes said.

DRUNK IS FINED $50 ON 23RD CONVICTION

Nine Others Convicted in Early Court on Drinking Counts

With 22 previous convictions, Ed. Bennett appeared before Magistrate Tinker in early court to-day and pleaded guilty to being drunk. He was fined $50 and costs or 30 days. Similar fines were handed out to Michael Fallon, William Robinson, Leo Mulhall, Robert McAvoy and Joseph McCullagh, whose wife told the court he refused to go to work.

Also pleading guilty of being drunk, Lawrence Hatt, Alex. Myers, William Lewis and James Harwood were fined $10 and costs or 10 days. Myers had been found lying between railway tracks, the court was told.

The following were remanded for sentence on drunk charges: Horace Kemp, John Corrigan, Arthur Ford, Charles Sherlock, Reuben J. Wilson, Benjamin Garvey, John Shackleton and William Charleston.

When Albert Beaudry and William Pouliott, charged with stealing a ride on a railway train, pleaded they had jobs to go to in Windsor, his worship fined them $10 each and remanded the alternative jail term to one day. "You can spend one day in jail," he added.

Refused Dime, Grabbed Driver Failing to receive a response to his plea for "a dime," Joe Dunn had caught hold of a motorist by the arm and attempted to pull him out of his car. P.C. Campbell testified, Dunn, convicted of vagrancy, was fined $20 and costs or 30 days.

P.C. Campbell said he had watched accused solicit a motorist waiting at an intersection for a traffic signal. "I heard him ask for 'a dime,' and when the motorist refused, Dunn grabbed his arm," the officer said. "I put a stop to it."

HEALTH BD., POLICE TO DISCUSS NOISE

Hope to Set Out Those Regarded Unnecessary

To discuss means of eliminating much of Toronto's noise, the board of health will meet the police commission June 24, it was announced to-day.

Dr. F. J. Conboy, member of the health board, said that much of the noise could be eliminated with more strict enforcement of present laws. This was up to the police-men to decide whether a noise was "unnecessary." "What we want to do is set out certain definite noises as unnecessary," he explained. "For instance, unnecessary honking."

MYSTERIOUS 'ABE' AD JUST A LOVERS' SPAT

Young Toronto Swain Found Source of Newspaper Code

NO TAKERS OF BET

When a young Toronto man yesterday used the "personal" ad column of The Star to patch up a quarrel with his best girl, he had no idea he would throw police and citizens into a turmoil. But he did. The young chap, for reasons of his own, used the pseudonym "Abe" forgetting police were searching everywhere for the kidnapper of Abe Orpen. Toronto race track owner. Within a few minutes after first appearance of the ad, police, newspaper and the public generally were speculating if this mysterious "Abe" of the agony column had some close connection with the unsolved hold-up.

Although police state they became aware of the mysterious series of advertisements Tuesday it was not until late last night they solved the puzzle. Then they called on the youthful advertiser at a Brunswick Ave. rooming house, and discovered he was merely trying to effect a reconciliation with a friend of the opposite sex.

Meantime, while the police busy on other clues postponed investigation of the ads, speculation grew as to their source and their probable connection with the kidnaping.

Inquiry as a result of the ads, established one further fact in connection with the Orpen hold-up. The young assailant, who promised to return the ring, haven't sent it back to its owner yet. The kidnap victim still thinks that when the hold and cry quits down a bit the offenders will keep their promise and return the ring. But his estimate of his chances of getting it back are expressed in sporting parlance. He is willing to bet one against 50 the ring will be returned to him. This despite promise of the kidnap trio "to go straight" on payment of $1,000 ransom.

Yesterday afternoon on information that track passes had been stolen from Orpen in the hold-up, provincial and city police concentrated their search at Long Branch track opening, but without getting a glimpse of anyone who could be identified as hold-up suspects.

SECOND MAN MISSING IN STEAMER MYSTERY

Son of Prince Vanishes After Telling of Cabin Mate's Disappearance

Le Havre, France, June 10.—Police disclosed to-day Dr. R. Dadiani, who described himself as the son of a Roumanian prince, had mysteriously disappeared following the loss at sea of his cabin-mate.

Dadiani told police how Pedro Peroni, 28, Brazilian Boy Scout representative, had been lost from the liner Raul Soares, as he paced the deck at dawn June 6, looking for a "beautiful blond German girl."

Police said that after Dadiani finished his narrative he went back to the Raul Soares to spend the night, but could not be found this morning when the vessel was scheduled to sail for Hamburg, where he was to land. Police at once started a widespread search.

Dr. Dadiani described himself as the son of Prince Jean Dadio and Princess Maria Elvire of Roumania. The beautiful German whose name was not disclosed, said she had not seen Peroni during the night. He made no effort to awaken her, she said and slept soundly.

SLIPS FROM ROCK, DROWNS

Sudbury, June 10.—Dragging operations were being conducted to-day for the body of Isaac Blisson, 56, of Naughton, drowned yesterday in the Onaping river near Leveak, 35 miles northwest of Sudbury, when he slipped from rocks.

Canadians Develop Taste For Chrysanthemum Tea

Chrysanthemums for tea, strange enough, is not a dish for a couple of hungry billy goats, but a Chinese beverage which is becoming popular on Canadian tables.

One finds oneself in a dim little tea store conducted by a wizened, agreeable Chinese. He smiles and nods, and says, "Ah, yes! Flowers." He dips into a big mahogany box painted with Chinese characters and brings out a handful of shriveled yellow fragments. These sell for a few cents. Sometimes he'll lead a customer to the rear of his little shop and show how to make and drink it.

He puts about three flowers into the teapot, and over them pours a little honey. Then he sprinkles in tea leaves of his own blending and pours the boiling water. He makes a different blend for himself. "Canadian people don't like this kind till they get used to it," he explains.

When the tea is ready he pours it into a small cup without any handles. He holds it in both hands and takes a long sip, to the accompaniment of a loud sucking noise which, he explains, is a sign of appreciation. Don't suggest cream!

After tea, perhaps, he talks about tea. In Tibet, for example, they get tea in slabs, weighing about six pounds, and divided in squares like a huge chocolate bar. To prepare a cup of tea they break off a lump, pop it into the water along with a piece of soda, a little fongal salt and butter, and churn the concoction to a brown paste. Those Tibetans down 70 cups or so a day. The Chinese brew tea with the tips of rose leaves which have been kept for months to ferment; they make another kind with jasmine flowers.

SHIPPING ON THE LAKES

50 P.C. OF MEN NEVER GO TO CHURCH, BAPTISTS TOLD

Duty to Find Out Why Frank Inrig Exhorts Convention

CHANCE FOR YOUTH

"Fifty per cent, I venture to say, of the men in your community never attend church and it is up to you to learn why," declared Frank Inrig, vice-chairman of the brotherhood committee, addressing the Ontario-Quebec Baptist conference late Wednesday.

"There has never been a time in all history when the opportunities for young men have been so great and numerous," Dr. J. Wilbert Brien of Windsor told the convention.

"Keep a stiff upper lip and your chin high," was his advice. "There is only one man in all the world who can bring about my defeat and that man is yourself," he said.

"Get the idea out of your head that the world owes you anything. It doesn't, but by your iron will and fine spirit you can make every man you meet your debtor."

"Guard your health and have an inward reverence for your mind," Dr. Brien said. "Keep your mind clear."

He felt that laymen can perform a real service in the visitation of the people.

Clifford Howard, Toronto barrister, leading a discussion on Baptist men in the community, declared men to-day have attacked Christianity because the church has adopted a social gospel.

"Merely making people Christians isn't enough, but we have to get them to sit down and develop a Christian social order," Mr. Howard said.

"No matter what the economic system is," declared Rev. A. U. Russell, Toronto, "we will have wrongs and evils so long as men's hearts are cruel and selfish. It's mighty hard to talk to hungry men about the Gospel. Let's tell the world we want to do something to better conditions."

LABOR REVOLT SEEN OVER ARMS MAKING

Claims Productive Workers Must Keep Munition Makers

95, BORN IN A CANOE TO GET 'PLANE RIDE

Geneva, June 10.—Edward F. McGrady, United States assistant secretary of labor, predicted at the international labor conference to-day that workers throughout the world will revolt some day against the heavy expenditures for armaments which are forcing down the standard of living. The world spent more than $6,000,000,000 for armaments in 1936 and the amount has been increased since, he declared.

"The significance to labor of this problem," he said, "appears in the simple fact that every workman engaged in the construction of armaments must be provided with the necessities of life by the labor of those engaged in productive enterprises."

LOYALIST STRONG MAN RAISING 500,000 ARMY

Offensive Dream Nears Realization—To Save Madrid and Bilbao

Perpignan, French-Spanish Frontier, June 10.—Indalecio Prieto, strong man of the loyalist government, promised to-day that he would save Bilbao by organizing a general offensive of loyalist forces. Long a loyalist dream, Prieto said that the reality was near.

Prieto, in a statement to-day, asserted the loyalists soon will command an army of 500,000 men, every one of whom will have had military training.

"I am a firm pacifist," said the minister of national defence, who was appointed May 18. "But it is and has been my aim, in this national emergency, to create a great, powerful army capable of defending democratic Spain from the militarily superior, highly mechanized army of our opponents."

"We must save Bilbao and free Madrid completely. That means that a big offensive is needed. I can say no more. After the submission of courage the Basques have shown I promise that we will soon provide them with the best form of aid in the nature of a major offensive."

Do you know this about CONSTIPATION?

Constipation is a muscular complaint. The cause of it is starved muscles—those important muscles of the intestines whose duty it is to expel waste from the body. You can't have proper elimination unless these muscles are in a healthy working condition.

REMAINED FOR OBSERVATION

Hamilton, June 10.—"This man has tried the same thing several times and the episodes are occurring so frequently that mental examination is needed," Crown Attorney Ballard told Magistrate Burbridge when James O'Neill, Mount Hamilton, appeared on a charge of attempted suicide. O'Neill was sent to the observation unit of the Ontario hospital for a three-week period.
